Excerpt: . . . at him for being at the foot of the class, were soon silenced by his reaching the head and staying there. The biographies of Abraham Lincoln tell you that on November 4, 1842, he was married to Mary Todd. But his wedding day had once before been fixed for January 1, 1841. The wedding feast was prepared, the guests were assembled, the bride was ready for the ceremony, but the bridegroom came not. After several hours his friends found him beside himself refusing to be cheered up. His friend Herndon writing of this time, many years later, said his life was despaired of. He rarely attended the sessions of the Legislature, of which he had been a conspicuous member, and when he was told that he would die if he did not cheer up, he said, I would be more than willing, and Abraham...
